who was ineligible Director Merriam of the census department has sent to the several supervisors his plan for dividing Michigan into enumeration districts. The divison sent to Supervisor O. L. Sprague provides for 129 districts in the eighth district, which is an in crease of 23 compared with the number ten years ago. It is however quite probable that some changes will be made which will increase the number.

Horribly Burned.

Mrs. Fred Gill was terribly burned yesterday morning, at her home, No. 115 North Lansing street, apparently because she attempted to fill her gasoline stove while it was lighted and spilled some of the gasoline on her dress. The dress caught fire and she ran out to the back porch of the house where Mrs. Jas. Shotwell was standing. Mrs. Shotwell threw a piece of carpet about her and did her best to put out the flames as did also Andy Geeck, who heard the woman's cries and promptly heard the woman's cries and promptly came to her assistance, but it was several minutes before the flames were all put out and in the meantime Mrs. Gill was so frightfully burned from the waist up that her chances for recovery seemed on first examination to be very slight. Mrs. Gill has been married but a few months, her husband being one of Bell's bakers. This noon word was received that the suffering woman was doing as well as could be hoped for and that she now has at least a fair chance for

The crack of the hunter's rifle and the cry of the hounds take the place of the singing birds of summer time these days. OUTGROWN ITS SWITCHBOARD.

The Owosso Telephone Co. Secures an Improved Model of Greater Capacity.

Mr. C. W. Gale, president of the Owosso Telephone Company, closed a contract in this city Monday with Mr. W. F. Richard son, of the Detroit Telephone & Switch board Construction Company, whereby the Owosso company will become the owner of a new $4,000 switch board of the latest and most approved type and of a much larger capacity than the one now in use, tho it was the best model available at the time it was put in and seemed of sufficient size to serve the company for a long time.

enough lines with two telephones, an office and a residence for instance, on the same line so that the three hundred lines are now connected up with about three hundred twenty-five telephones. The opportunity for putting in other phones for those who are continually taking contracts for the company's phones is almost at the limit and not nore than three or four more can be put in until the old board is superceded by the new, which will be wired to accommodate four hundred lines besides a fifth section which will be used entirely for the state line work but which could also be wired up for local phones if more than the four hundred lines provided for by the other four sections should be required. Thus this arrangement provides both for a better state line service, since it is confined to a section of the board by itself, and provides for growth to a list of some four hundred to four hundred fifty telephones without using the state line section for any, and provides for an expansion to over five hundred fifty phones by using a part of the state line section for local lines as at present. Another valuable feature which will be appreciated by subscribers is the multiple system with which it is wired by which the same operator who answers a subscriber can call any other subscriber from her own sec tion of the board, no matter if the sub scriber she calls would call up on the fourth board from hers, yet she need not interrupt a subscriber she wishes to call, for if his line is busy she can tell before she rings on his line. All this avoids the waiting for one operater, who is already busy, to call a subscriber for another operator who cannot reach to call the one desired. The result, it will be easily seen, will be much prompter service than is possible at present. Im-proved ringing devices are also provided, while the board will be fitted with direct ring-offs, which will put an end to what has occasionally given annoyance to both sub-scribers and operators with the indirect ring-off device on the present board.

The new board is promised the company nside of sixty days and will be set up in the room adjoining the present office room on the west, in the Keeler block. The new board will be about thirteen feet long. It will provide room for two more, and will require one more operator than can be used now owing to the lack of room at the present boards which give room for only three operators.

The operating room will be entirely apart from the office which will be in the room now used as office and operating room combined. In the latter room will also be two booths for the public pay station. The manager, R. W. Crawford, will have his office in this room as will also the bookkeeper so that there will be no oceasion for interrupting the operators except to call them from a telephone for whatever number is desired. As the dividing board connecting the switch boards and the cables rom the pole outside will be in the outside office the operators will also be free from the annoyance of having linemen working about the board
